"In every work that he began he did it with all his heart—and prospered."

VERY city has assets and advantages which have existed so long that the citizens never stop to appraise their value. They are among the things "taken for granted."

For instance, let us consider right here in Paris the location of the federal court for the eastern district of Texas. Our magnificent $225,000 post office and federal building; the amount of money paid out in salaries and the people drawn to Paris.

The Paris post office employs a total of 40 men including seven rural route carriers and during the recent holiday rush fourteen extra men were given employment. The average payroll of the post office in Paris will rank with some of our larger business institutions. The total amounts to approximately $70,000 per year, which does not include salaries of employees of the federal court.

Uncle Sam pays good salaries and treats his men well. But of course he requires loyalty and efficiency. In his Paris post office, he pays seven rural carriers $150 per month, eleven city mail carriers $115 per month, fourteen mail clerks $175 per month and four janitors each $50 per month. The post master's salary is not as high as many think, the amount being $282 per month. The railway postal clerks are not paid through the local office.

Carrying this business of the government out into the country, one finds thirty-three rural route carriers given employment. These rural carriers receive an average of $2200 per route per year. In addition to this are the various post masters and employees of other post offices in the country.

THE federal court employs in Paris five people: one marshal, three deputies and one clerk. These salaries total $11,850 per year.

The federal court convenes in Paris the second Monday in December and the third Monday in April of each year. Approximately one hundred and fifty jurors are summoned each year, one hundred witnesses are summoned and about twenty-five attorneys attend federal court here during the year. This estimate includes only those men living outside the county.

The federal building in Paris was built at a cost of $225,000. The building includes two floors and a basement. Offices in the basement are used for the army recruiting office and as a deputy income tax collector's office. The first floor is used exclusively by the post office.

The second floor of the federal building is used for the federal court room, the commissioner's office, U. S. district attorney's office, witness room, federal judge's office, and two offices for the marshal and his deputies.

Recently the government expended $4,609 for the installation of an automatic elevator which was badly needed. This makes the federal building in Paris one of the most modern of its size in the southwest.

From an exterior view the federal building is a handsome structure, a credit to any city and one to which our citizens may justly point with pride.

Escaped Convict Captured
ABILENE, Jan. 21. (AP)—George Barbour, 22, escaped Texas convict and charged in Sweetwater with robbery with firearms in connection with the kidnapping and robbery of two taxi drivers here Tuesday night, was captured at a tourist camp here Thursday afternoon.

DALLAS, Tex., Jan. 21. (AP)—Jed C. Adams, Democratic national committeeman, said Thursday that a North Texas "victory dinner" would be held here January 29.

WILL ROGERS says:

PARIS, Jan. 21.—Flew over Corsica Island today. No wonder Napoleon left there. Now here is a warning:

All Europe is looking for us to do all the debt canceling, so don't send delegates with hardened arteries, as usual, but get some with hardened hearts, for these people are even rehearsing their crying now.

Hoover Asks Appropriation To Speed Up Work Of Huge Reconstruction Corporation

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21. (AP)—President Hoover Thursday appealed to congress for an appropriation enabling the great reconstruction finance corporation to begin its task of striking the shackles from American business without delay.

He submitted to the house a brief special message asking prompt approval for the $500,000,000 outlay called for in the bill creating the credit organization.

"I am transmitting this estimate of appropriations at this time so that important operations of the corporation may be commenced at the earliest possible date," Mr. Hoover said.

Chairman Byrns of the house appropriations committee said he would begin hearings on the appropriation Friday, with Under Secretary Mills of the treasury as a witness. The house will probably be asked to vote on it Saturday, he added.

Only formalities remained to complete congressional action on the reconstruction corporation bill itself. Friday possibly Saturday certainly, it will receive the signature of Mr. Hoover. Almost immediately it is to begin functioning with Charles Gates Dawes at its head.

Represent Uncle Sam At Geneva

Here are four members to the American delegation to the Geneva arms conference which opened Wednesday. They were snapped as they arrived at the White House to be guests of President Hoover for luncheon prior to their departure. Left to right are Norman Davis, member of the U. S. delegation to the international economic conference in 1927; Senator Claude Swanson of Virginia; Miss Mary W. Woolley, president of Mount Holyoke college, and Charles G. Dawes, who later resigned to be head of the $2,000,000,000 reconstruction finance corporation.

New Case Of Attack Stirs Honolulu; Loose Convict Is Sought As Perpetrator

HONOLULU, Jan. 21. (AP)—A new case of attack upon a woman and a grim hunt with ready pistols for a desperate convict as the suspected attacker were headed upon Honolulu's grim of trouble Thursday.

The city, still rumbling over other attacks, the lynching of one alleged assailant and the ensuing deluge of investigations and reform movements, was stirred anew by the story of Mrs. Toka Okazaki, 29, a Japanese, that she had been the victim of a man who had overpowered her escort on the outskirts of the city Wednesday night.

Medical authorities made varying reports as to the accuracy of her story but finally announced the evidence showed she had been criminally attacked.

Mrs. Okazaki identified a photograph of Daniel Lyman, escaped murder convict, as her assailant and police were ordered to shoot if necessary in their hunt for him. Lyman escaped from Oahu prison December 31, 1931, along with Lui Kalkapu, burglary convict. The latter was captured and returned for life after confessing to criminally attacking a school teacher January 2.

JAPANESE SEND NEW FORCES TO SITE OF CLASHES

Aircraft Carrier, Destroyers and Landing Party Go to Shanghai

SHANGHAI, China, Jan. 21. (AP)—Japan has dispatched an aircraft carrier, four destroyers and a special landing party to Shanghai as a result of clashes between Japanese and Chinese here, Tokyo dispatches said Thursday.

Meanwhile extraordinary precautions were taken by the authorities of the international settlement to prevent another outbreak similar to yesterday's fight in which two persons were killed and many were wounded.

The Tokyo dispatches said that in addition to the force already ordered to Shanghai, other naval craft were being held at the Japanese base at Sasebo for quick movement to Shanghai in case of necessity.

Numerous lesser street brawls in the Japanese portion of the international settlement followed Wednesday's bloody disorders.

SENATE VOTES NO ON REFERENDA ON PROH QUESTION

Resolution Is Overwhelmed By Vote Of Fifty-five To Fifteen

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21. (AP)—In its first vote on prohibition at this session, the senate Thursday rejected, 55 to 15, a resolution under which it would have gone on record as welcoming state referenda on prohibition repeal and modification.

Senators did not regard the vote as a test on the prohibition issue. Its opponents contended the resolution was meaningless and "an attempt to pass the buck." Some of those who voted against it are listed by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment as being for repeal or resubmission of the 18th amendment.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, led the opposition. He described the proposal as a "patent attempt to pass the buck to the states" and reflected no decisive stand by the senate.

Lausanne Conference Not Abandoned, British Say

LYTTON STRACHEY, BIOGRAPHER, DIES

Noted For Recreation of Victorian England After World War

INKPEN, BERKSHIRE, Eng., Jan. 21. (AP)—Lytton Strachey, 52, whose vivid biographies recreated the pomp of Victorian England for a weary, post-war world, died Thursday.

The author of "Queen Victoria" and "Elizabeth and Essex" had been ill with paratyphoid fever for many weeks and had been confined to his home at Marlborough. Although his illness was known to be serious, his sudden passing was a shock to friends in many parts of the world.

Early in his career the biographer wrote for English reviews.

Quakes in Guatemala
GUATEMALA CITY, Jan. 21. (AP)—Ten earthquake shocks and more than 50 rumbling tremors aroused fears here of great damage near two volcanoes erupting 50 miles away.

DALLAS, Jan. 21. (AP)—Anna K. McHenry, former cashier of the Dallas postoffice, was indicted by the grand jury Thursday on a charge of embezzling postoffice funds.

Psychiatrist Driven From Court Room By Ruth Judd As Trial Testimony Begun

COURT HOUSE, PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 21. (AP)—With flashing eyes, Winnie Ruth Judd, confessed slayer, drove a prosecution psychiatrist from the court room under a burning tirade Thursday as testimony was started in her trial for the slaying of Agnes Anne Lerol.

"I won't have him near me," she cried, leaping to her feet to confront Dr. Joseph Catton of San Francisco, who approached her chair during a court recess. "He's talked about me! He's acted like a little boy. Get out of here!"

Dr. Catton, who before leaving San Francisco to appear as a witness expressed his opinion Mrs. Judd was sane, started back, and left the court room immediately. The defense has indicated it will attempt to establish insanity. Mrs. Judd also is under indictment for the slaying of Hedvig Samuelson. Both women, the states charges were killed on or about October 16, in Phoenix, and their bodies sent to Los Angeles in trunks.

Would-be spectators mobbed the court house corridors in futile efforts to get into Judge Howard C. Speakman's little court room to hear first state testimony against the slender blue-eyed defendant.

FLOYD BELIEVED ONE OF TRIO IN HOLDUP OF BANK

Cashier Kidnaped by Machine Gun Bandits; $800 Is Taken

DOVER, Okla., Jan. 21. (AP)—Three machine gun robbers, one of whom was believed to have been Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd, robbed the Dover State Bank, Thursday, kidnaped the cashier, and escaped with $800 while search for the desperado was concentrated across the state in the hills of Eastern Oklahoma.

A. L. Fash, the cashier, who was released unharmed about two miles north of here, said he believed the driver of the bandit car was Floyd, who is wanted for five murders and a dozen bank robberies. The car was equipped, as Floyd's is reputed to be, with two machine guns.

An intensive manhunt was in progress throughout northwestern Oklahoma Thursday night with sheriffs and police of neighboring counties joining in the search.

TWO KILLED IN CRASH INVOLVING TRUCK AND AUTO

Principal of Winnie School One of Victims; Ten Injured

BEAUMONT, Tex., Jan. 21. (AP)—L. G. Rodgers, 30, principal of the Winnie School and whose home is believed to be in Weimar and Francis McBride, about 28, of Winnie, were instantly killed Thursday night when the automobile in which they and four members of the Winnie basketball team were riding collided with a truck owned by the N. A. Saigh Construction company of San Antonio and carrying 20 pipe line workers. Ten of the workmen were injured, several seriously.

Rodgers and McBride with the four basketball players were driving home after a basketball game here when they met the truck on a narrow bridge on the Fannett highway. Speeding up in an attempt to pass the truck, the car crashed into the double rear wheels of the larger vehicle and turned over into the ditch.

Rum Cars Are Sold At Bargain Rates; $75 Top Bid

An auctioneer's voice rising above the jeering remarks directed at the 18th amendment and one-time whiskey runners clinched the sale of five government confiscated automobiles to the highest bidders during an hour of brisk bidding Thursday morning at the Paris Transfer and Storage company.

A total of $241 was realized from the sale of former whiskey transports as the automobiles were sold at prices ranging from $13 to $75.

Crackling jests from many of the 200 people gathered at the auction enlivened the bidding and provided the entertainment.

Bidding on an old model roadster was animated by such remarks as, "Hey! that 'ole' buggy hasn't run since the prohibition law was passed." "Where'd he have that whiskey—lashed to the side?" "He must've stalled in front of the courthouse."

The bidding of a late model automobile was fraught with the remarks: "That bootlegger has a ghost bidder down here." "I'll make it $50 if there's a case under the seat." "Does a whiskey permit go with that car?"

Drive For Federal Funds To Aid Unemployed Sends $375,000,000 Bill to Senate

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21. (AP)—The drive for federal appropriations to help the unemployed swept a $375,000,000 bill on to the senate floor Thursday with indications of Democratic independent Republican support.

Despite the president's unyielding opposition, the senate manufacturer's committee voted 6 to 2 to approve the Costigan-La Follette bill authorizing relief appropriations of $125,000,000 for the fiscal year beginning next July.

The committee's report was submitted to the senate by Chairman La Follette, one of the bill's authors, a few hours later. He forecast an effort to bring the measure up for action at the first opportunity.

The bill was given the solid support of Democrats and Independent Republicans on the committee, but Democratic leaders were non-committal with respect to their attitude on the measure. It was indicated that although the bill may have the support of many Democrats, it probably will not be made a party issue.

Testimony Concluded In Injunction Suit Testing Acreage Reduction Edict

FRANKLIN, Tex., Jan. 21. (AP)—Testimony was concluded here on Thursday night in the injunction suit brought by County Attorney T. L. Tyson against Fred L. Smith, a farmer, to test the constitutional-ity of the state cotton acreage control law.

District Judge W. C. Davis reserved decision until next week. The case will be carried by the losing side to the court of civil appeals at Waco and from there to the supreme court at Austin.

The law was passed at a called session of the legislature last fall and forbade planting more than 30 per cent of the total acreage in 1931 to cotton in 1932.

Testimony closed with state Representative Lawrence Westbrook of Waco, co-author of the bill, attacking its value in view of the fact other states had failed to pass effective control bills.

At the same time, J. E. McDonald, state agricultural commissioner, and state representative J. J. Olsen of Yoakum, co-author of the law, conceded the low price of cotton influenced passing the law, and agricultural experts disagreed as to its effectiveness in exterminating cotton root rot.

POLICE BREAK UP ATTEMPTED MEET OF NATIONALISTS

Police Have Trouble As Demonstrators Return After Being Dispersed

BOMBAY, Jan. 21. (AP)—Thousands of nationalists, assembled on Maidan Green at a demonstration meeting that had been forbidden by the authorities, were dispersed again and again by the police on Thursday, but each time they swarmed back to the green.

A dozen of the demonstrators were injured and several were arrested.

The meeting, called under the auspices of more than 40 mercantile associations, had been forbidden with the explanation that it might be used as a cloak for nationalist propaganda.

This order, promulgated after backers of the meeting announced they expected 100,000 persons to attend, caused deep resentment in the business community where it was described as an invasion of the right of free assembly.

TROOPS SENT TO QUELL SPANISH STRIKE MOVES

Naval Destroyer Ordered to Barcelona to Combat Revolutionary Strikers

MADRID, Jan. 21. (AP)—Troops were rushed Thursday into the province of Catalonia and a naval destroyer ordered to Barcelona, the principal Catalan city, to combat revolutionary strikers who launched what Premier Azana declared to be an "anarchist movement."

Extremists were reported to have seized control of the local governments in Berga, Salient and other towns, and proclaimed a "social revolution."

Buses, taxicabs and private automobiles were commandeered to transport a battalion of infantry, and detachments of cavalry, artillery and the civil guard to the district around Manresa, where the strikers cut railway and communication lines.

Reports from the district late Thursday indicated some semblance of order had been restored.

Scrivnor Gun Linked With Death Of Jones By Expert

HOUSTON, Texas, Jan. 21. (AP)—A ballistics expert, Maurice O'Neill of New Orleans Thursday afternoon identified the bullets that killed Mr. and Mrs. C. A. "Keggy" Jones as having been fired from a pistol found in the hotel room of W. S. "Shilo" Scrivnor.

Scrivnor, accused slayer of Mr. and Mrs. Jones, is on trial for the slaying of the woman. They were shot to death on August 31, last one day after John Cherris, had been slain. Police said they believed the Joneses were slain in revenge for the murder of Cherris. O'Neill testified as the ace of the prosecution witness.

The pistol, witnesses had said, was found in Scrivnor's hotel room in Des Moines, Iowa, at the time he was arrested.

TYLER, Jan. 21. (AP)—State Senator Thomas G. Pollard Thursday announced his candidacy for re-election from the seventh electoral district.

Drop In Waters Gives Brighter Outlook In Long Crisis

GLENDORA, Miss., Jan. 21. (AP)—Fair skies and a marked drop in sections of the Mississippi delta's 200-mile wide flood Thursday gave a brighter outlook to the long crisis of bursting levees.

Recessions in the great inland sea were noted in Panola, Quitman and Tallahatchie counties, but the immense sheets of water, slowly moving overland to the southward, threatened further trouble in Humphreys, Yazoo and neighboring counties before it will eventually find its way back into river channels.

At Belzoni, Humphreys county seat with a population of 7,500, levee workers were concentrated to protect the town from a major inundation, but expressed confidence the dikes would hold.

VERDICT GIVEN BY JURY; JUDGE DEFERS OPINION

Two Special Issues, Submitted By Court Are Answered

ASSAILANTS OF LAW FAVORED BY VERDICT

Commissioners Contend Act Discriminatory Toward Five Counties

HOUSTON, Texas, Jan. 21. (AP)—A jury verdict on a question of fact, holding the state automobile license tax law discriminatory, was returned in district court here Thursday.

Judge Charles E. Ashe, presiding, deferred his judgment, however, and the future status of the act, remained undecided pending his action.

Answers Two Issues

The jury answered two special issues submitted by the court, in both cases favorable to the assailants of the law, the Harris county commissioners, who brought suit against County Tax Collector J. W. Hall and the state highway department. The commissioners sought injunction to restrain Hall from remitting to the highway department any automobile license fees collected in this county, but the request was not acted upon, of course, since Judge Ashe made no decision.

Held Discriminatory
The commissioners contended the act was discriminatory toward Harris county, inferentially, to four other counties of similar size, in that it required this county to pay over to the highway department most of the fees collected here, while many small counties were permitted to retain their entire collections.

The law classifies the counties of the state into three groups. Under its provisions counties collecting up to $50,000 in fees may retain the entire amount; counties collecting more than that amount may retain half of all above $50,000 until their respective shares shall have reached $175,000; counties collecting still more must give to the state all above the $175,000.

Harris county collects annually about $1,900,000 in fees. Dallas, Bexar, Tarrant and Jefferson counties collections are similarly far in excess of those in the great majority of counties.

FRANCIS CROWLEY YOUNG DEPERADO DIES IN CHAIR

Pays Penalty for Murder of Nassau County Officer Last May

OSHING, N. Y., Jan. 21. (AP)—Francis (Two-Gun) Crowley, 20-year-old desperado, was put to death in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison Thursday night for the murder last May of Frederick Hirsch, Nassau county policeman. He was pronounced dead at 10:07 p. m.

He had entered the death chamber at 11:02 p. m.

His last words were: "Send my regards to my mother. Tell Mrs. Lawes (wife of Warden Lawes) I appreciate everything she did for me. Hello Sergeant. I don't think these things (the straps that bound him to the chair) are tight enough for me."

Outwardly composed, the young police killer displayed none of the braggadocio which had characterized his criminal career.

He was led into the small execution chamber by the prison chaplain, the Rev. Father John P. McCaffrey. The chaplain was praying as they entered.

Educational Campaign Is Necessary In Fighting Malaria

FIELD DIRECTOR DISCUSSES EAST TEXAS PROGRAM

Twenty-Five Counties Are Included In Present Territory

"A constructive malaria control program, to be entirely successful," said C. M. Adams, field director of malaria control, "must follow an educational campaign. People of East Texas must first realize the extent, cause and means of spreading malaria before they can embark on a successful prevention campaign."

Campaign Now On

Mr. Adams, who was in Paris Thursday to confer with R. J. Presley, district sanitarian, said extensive educational campaign is being launched throughout East Texas. Booklets, describing the nature of malaria, means of spreading it and methods of control are being distributed in the schools of 25 East Texas counties. To increase interest in studying these booklets, prizes are being offered for essays and posters from children in the schools.

Prior to distributing the booklets, which are issued by the health departments of the state and federal governments, a campaign was carried out in 24 East Texas counties, which included speaking, and showing of motion pictures. Attendance at the meetings in the 24 counties totaled more than 45,000 people.

At the present time, in all counties where an active campaign is being carried out, sanitarians and malaria control workers are making talks daily, explaining how malaria is spread, means of prevention and methods of curing the disease.

Protection Urged

Teachers throughout East Texas are being urged to stress the importance of protection from mosquitoes, by screening homes and treating water which can not be drained away or enclosed mosquito proof.

Physicians of East Texas are being urged to cooperate with the health department in determining the extent of malaria. The department is making analyses of blood samples sent in by physicians free of charge. Physicians are also being urged to make every effort to cure all malaria patients entirely, in order to reduce the number of malaria carriers.

Newspapers of East Texas are also engaging in the campaign by giving publicity to the results found in the extensive malaria survey made by the health departments of Texas and the United States last year in East Texas.

REPORTS ON WORK OF LIONS CLUB GIVEN THURSDAY

Chairmen Tell of Organization Activities for Past Six Months

Part of the work done by the Paris Lions club during the past six months, according to reports of committee chairmen at the weekly meeting Thursday noon at the Glendale hotel, with only about half of the standing committees reporting was: furnishing and fitting seven pairs of glasses for children with defective eyesight; increasing the Lions student loan fund sufficiently to keep two more students in school; and helping to sponsor the Girl Scout movement here.

Dr. T. E. Hunt reported for the committee on work for the blind. Hugh Palmer reported for the Girl and Boy Scout committee. He introduced Mrs. Justin Neathery, Girl Scout director, who thanked the club for the assistance it has given in her work. There are 150 active Girl Scouts in Paris, she said.

Roy McLemore reported for the committee on school affairs. H. C. Haynes reported for the constitution and bylaws committee. J. C. Hathaway outlined the work of the Lions education committee in the spreading of Lionism and its precepts. There are almost 100,000 Lions in the United States, he said, and more Lions clubs than in any other similar organization.

D. B. Alexander gave the semi-annual report of the finance committee. Rev. Presley Herndon of the committees on citizenship and the Lions moral code, and Rev. W. M. Wright of the committee for major activities. Ross Bliff attended committee chairman, reported that average attendance is about 55 per cent, an improved record.

The club voted to give prizes of $5 and $2.50 for essays by students of local schools on the subject of good citizenship. This contest will be handled by the citizenship committee, and will include Paris Junior college and the high school as well as elementary schools.

Visitors at Thursday's meeting were: Mrs. Justin Neathery, Frank Wilson of Texarkana, and Richard C. Brown of Fort Worth.

Reports of other committees on their work during the six months period just ended are to be heard at a future meeting. Committees not yet reporting on their work include some of the club's most important committees.

In honor of the late George Griffiths, a prominent member of the club, the following resolution was unanimously adopted, while members of the club stood in tribute during its reading:

"Whereas, in the death of George Griffiths, this community has lost a valuable citizen and the Lions club a loyal and dependable member."

"Resolved, that we should emulate his character and good deeds. That we bow to the inevitable and accept our loss with grief and sorrow. Further, that we express to his bereaved family and the community a sincere sympathy and that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our club and copy given to the press and his sorrowing wife."

ASSASSIN

A Drinker of Hashish!

In eleventh-century Persia, a secret order was founded by Hassan ben Sabbah, indulging in the use of the Oriental drug hashish, and, when under its influence, in the practice of secret murder. The murderous drinker of hashish came to be called bathabi in the Arabic and from that origin comes our English word assassin!

AMATEUR ARTISTS

A DAUGHTER-IN-LAW of the late William Dean Howells, who has been painting pictures since May and is about to exhibit them in a New York gallery, explains that before she began, painting seemed mysterious to her, but, says she: "I can't mysterious. All you need is some paint and something on which to put it."
She forgets the essential ingredient which was indicated by John Ople, a distinguished painter, of the eighteenth century, when in response to an inquiry about what he mixed his colors with, he replied: "I mix them with brains, sir." Guido Reni once said of Rembrandt that he mixed blood with his colors, meaning that he metaphorically sweats blood at his labors.
It takes brains and hard labor to produce a great work of art, but pictures can be produced by thousands of persons like Mrs. Howells with paint and something to put it on. There are many business men who find recreation in putting on canvas what they have seen. In New York a Business Man's Art Club has been organized, some of the members of which have developed an ability that rivals that of some of the professional artists. They have the paint and the canvas and that indispensable something else which perhaps Mrs. Howells has discovered that she is gifted with.

ADVERTISERS BEAT DEPRESSION

THE following appeared in a recent issue of the Public Service Magazine:
The old aphorism "It pays to advertise" might be amended to read, "It pays to advertise during a depression."
A survey made by the Department of Commerce's Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce of 358 business concerns which have successfully combated the depression, disclosed that "increased sales efforts" and "advertising policies" are responsible in most cases for this progress and success. The government's report says:
"It is noteworthy that not one of the concerns which is included in this study as having been successful in combating the effects of the depression has diminished its sales effort (which of course includes advertising) in order to save money."
This ought to be the last answer to those business concerns which have taken the position that "it does not pay to advertise during a depression" and have cut their advertising to the bone and paralyzed their sales efforts. If results count, here they are.

CARBON MONOXIDE MENACE

THE federal public service has issued another warning against the carbon monoxide peril, which grows year by year. Carbon monoxide is an odorless lethal gas that is given off in large quantities by the exhaust of motors.
The survey of the health service explodes the theory that the streets are becoming dangerous because of the clouds of smoke that arise from motors on congested thoroughfares, but solemn warning is given concerning roofed structures used to house automobiles. Garages, repair stations and parking sheds are the places of danger.
Fresh air dispels the peril of carbon monoxide. Samples of air taken at principal street corners in 14 large cities were found to be virtually pure, and certainly not dangerous. The fresh air "cure" should be given garages frequently—every day, if possible—and under no circumstances should a motorist sit in a closed car in a closed garage and start the motor. Carbon monoxide kills quickly and without any previous warning.

THE LAST WAS FIRST

THERE is a yarn in circulation about a prominent lawyer, one of the really big minds of the legal profession, who recently attended a class in a certain law school. In the presence of the eminent visitor, pedagogical formalities were dispensed with and things were opened up for general discussion.
Our distinguished legalist—so the story goes, began questioning the students as to their academic progress and standing. When he asked how many were maintaining averages of 90 per cent or better, several hands went up. Still more indicated grades of 80. The majority admitted passing averages of 75.
"Is there anyone," asked the Big Mind, "who is down in the 25 per cent class of hopeless failure?"
Sheepishly, a lank youngster in the rear of the room, made an affirmative sign.
"Well," said the erudite questioner, "that is about where I stood in law school."

ALL OF US
By Marshall Maslin

WE had a singing class in our school. Every Friday afternoon at half past three we all crowded in a classroom and SANG SONGS. It was "compulsory." We wouldn't have been there if it hadn't been. So we went—and we sang. The sun was bright outside. We had our swimming to do. We had to go home and lead the cow in from the pasture. We had our newspaper routes to take care of. . . . But for half an hour we had to go into that room, with the girls, and sing songs.

We sang "Jingle Bells," and "The Bulldog on the Bank and the Bullfrog in the Pool." And "Drink to Me Only," and "Funicula, Funicule," and "My Country, 'Tis of Thee." And "Men of Harlech. In the Hollow, DO you hear like rushing BILLOW, Wave on wave that surging FOL-low—BATTLE's distant SOUND?"

And we didn't like it! We felt silly and self-conscious and ridiculous. Sitting inside singing songs! when we might be doing something else.

But there was one song we did like. It was our favorite, though we might not have admitted it. We reveled in it. We loved it. . . . It was so sweet, it was so sad, it made us feel so bathed in the sorrow of the ages. . . . It was "Heart Bowed Down By Weight of Woe"—and it was a great comfort to us.

We sat there and sang. "THE HEART bowed down by WEIGHT of WOE—to WEEEEEK-end hope we CLIM-N-NG," and the words rolled out of us like sticky-sweet molasses. On and on we went, singing "For MEM-ory is the ON-ly thing that GREEK—that GR-E-E-E-E-E-E-E-E-E-E can call its OWN-N-N-N."

That was my favorite. I never told anybody's, but it was. Doring my chores I'd sing it. Riding my bicycle along country roads with my hands off the bars, all by myself, I'd sing that sorrowful song. It was such a consolation when I skinned my knees, when my heart was broken, whenever I wanted something and couldn't have it. It was my theme song, my incidental music.

And then I grew older, and I thought I grew wiser, and I never sang that song any more. . . . I comforted myself in other ways. I used other words, did other things when life wouldn't stay put. . . . For years I forgot that sweetly lugubrious song. It was a childish song that I had put aside.

That's what I thought until the other night, when I turned on the radio and heard a mixed quartet singing "Heart Bowed Down by Weight of Woe" and discovered with a shock that, for me, it had all its old pull, its drippy-soppy fascination—and was still my favorite consoling song. . . . Good Lord! don't we EVER grow up?

Backward Glances
By A. W. Neville

SOME things that are not done any more, so far as my knowledge extends:
Rat catching on the public square. Well, not exactly that, for the rats were caught in the stores in wire cage traps and turned loose on the square and caught and killed by dogs. Many of the stores, especially groceries, set traps and the clerk who opened the store in the morning would take the trap, if it held a rat, to the front, whistle one or more of the small dogs that were plentiful on the streets then, and after the dog was given a sniff of the rat the cage would be opened, the rat given a run of a few yards and the dog turned loose to catch it. Sometimes the rat would get halfway across the square unless the dog was spry. The sport was practiced in the early morning but there were usually enough spectators to make it interesting.

Parentetically, it was thought that after the fire of 1916, when thousands of rats were burned to death and the stores were rebuilt with concrete floors that there would be no more trouble with rats—but they are here, thousands of them, and so far no piper has appeared.

Another common sight was to see trash burning on the square. Stores were usually swept in the early morning by one of the clerks, who opened early. Few stores were modern enough to have a porter and it was part of the clerk's duty to sweep. The little pile of rubbish was swept off the edge of the sidewalk and a few feet away, and a match was put to it. There were no garbage wagons or carts and that was the only way to be rid of it. Sometimes the sweeping would be done just before the store closed at night and then the bonfire lighted up the whole square for a few minutes.

There was no paving then, only the dirt street and the sidewalks were usually made of timbers 2 by 4 laid on edge and spiked together on logs, and every store had a wooden awning supported by posts at the edge of the sidewalk. When the walks got unsafe from decay it was no great expense to repair them, and they were a great advance on the cinder or brickbat paths that were the only relief from the mud in some of the residence sections of Paris.

The finest of these wooden walks I ever saw was laid for F. S. Lynch on the north side of the square, in front of his business property. It was of solid oak sawed 2 by 4 or maybe 6, and stayed there for years. The timber came from a mill near Blossom and I expect today would be more expensive than concrete.

Polli tax payments were slow as usual, and the number issued lacked about $999 of the total Lamar county should pay.

Many influenza patients were being admitted at Alkin hospital. Among them were a family of six—the man, his wife and four children.

MY NEW YORK
By James Aswell

NEW YORK—Marginalia of a Madhattanite:
That little "Vanities" girl's remark keeps bubbling back to mind: "Earl's given me a break at last. Haven't you heard? He's promoting me from the back row to be one of the nudes in the first act finale." I always knew I'd click if I kept at it! . . . At a party the other night the napkins were a pale golden hue and each had embroidered on it in large script: BACARDI. . . . I can't figure out why the burlesque wheels hire those hefty and battle-scarred chorines when plenty of lovely young things are looking for back-row jobs just now. . . . Two thousand job-seekers respond whenever a night club or new show sends out a call. . . .
These times are bringing out unsuspected versatility in practitioners of the arts. . . . MacClelland Barclay, whose action-filled pretty-girl illustrations you've admired, has turned to sculpture and found it immensely profitable, transmuting his clean line to bronze ash trays. . . . And John Held, Jr., has taken up fiction, now that his flaming youth cartoons have not the novelty they held for colleagues ten years ago. . . . Russell Patterson is doing "straight" illustration for the magazines, recalling the fact that he exhibited his oil brilliantly in Paris and Vienna 15 years ago. . . . He still is a comparative youngster, too. . . .

All parties are agog just now over the Hawaiian situation, and some strange stories are going the rounds. . . . My sympathy is with Bobby Bell, who is on his way now to Hawaii, as "the man of the family." . . . I remember some grand parties at "Twin Oaks," the family estate outside Washington. I recall Mrs. Fortescue, a charming and impetuous lady, whose present predicament is inconceivable. . . .

Fighter's Future
Several of the sport commentators have remarked the difficulty in "placing" Gene Tunney, a Dempsey or a Corbett is easy to predict; they must travel a lot, they must involve themselves in frequent public appearances reminiscent of the old days, and they fade gently and gracefully from the public eye.

Gene is another matter. He couldn't succeed as a college professor, because his words are far too long for students to understand. He won't go back into the ring, which he secretly hates, or into any sort of barnstorming. He needs to do either, now, and his tastes run differently.

Maybe—I could even hazard probably—politics holds Gene's destiny. He has already been invited to join the democratic victory fund committee, besides being a member of the governor of Connecticut's staff. He is Irish, you'll remember, and he has a charming smile coupled with a swift understanding of his opponent's psychology. In addition, it would be a brave voter who'd dare heckle him.

What Few New Yorkers Know
That in Colonial days the cheap hotels of the city had circular beds, upon which guests slept sometimes 10 in a bed, heads out, feet to the center, like spokes of a wheel.

That the announcement I have been gabbling about, off and on for weeks will be broken before another one is off the calendar.

That Henry L. Doherty is director of more corporations than any other man alive, having a finger in 123.

Washington Daily Letter
By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON — Dry senators and representatives who, having noted significant barometric readings months ago, ever since then have been standing by to go astern on the prohibition proposition at an instant's warning, are being rewarded now for their alertness, in a certain peace of mind following the American Legion's 2 1/2 to 1 vote on the wet side of the wet-dry question at its Detroit convention in September.

Senator Glenn of Illinois, Senator Walsh of Montana, and Senator McNary of Oregon were among the far-seeing ones who announced, plenty of time in advance, that they were willing to support a policy favoring a prohibition referendum, if desired by their constituents.

Senator Wheeler of Montana proclaimed his complete conversion from dryness to wetness more than a year back.

These senators have cause to congratulate themselves.

Illinois, Montana and Oregon all went thoroughly wet at the Legion gathering, and Glenn, Walsh and McNary are in a position to go in reverse without undue strain upon their machinery, whereas Wheeler is backpedaling vigorously already.

Senator Jones of Washington was almost too smart, if anything. Although sponsor of the famous "11- and 19" dry law, he became alarmed by what he interpreted as his state's wet drift in 1930 or thereabouts and made it known that he also was prepared to vote for a referendum if necessary.

And the Washington Legionnaires balloted 16 to 8 dry at Detroit.

Jones might have stood pat in perfect safety and gained considerable credit for it.

Such accidents will happen.

But the statesmen who got a terrible shock when they read the Legion news from those who have been proceeding serenely full speed ahead as drys, firm in the faith that their home folk were irrevocably arid, only to have the Legion vote throw a frightful doubt into them, out of a perfectly clear sky, as it were.

It is tough on a politician's entire structure to be brought to a full stop, and maybe have to begin backing up as fast as he previously was moving in the opposite direction, at an instant's notice.

Who would have dreamed that Georgia Legionnaires, for instance, would have cast 17 straight wet votes, out of their state's total of 17, at Detroit?

Not Senator George or Senator Harris, to a certainty.

The George Legionnaires did, however.

And the Florida Legionnaires—to the horror of Senator Trammell, Senator Fletcher of Florida probably was not flabbergasted. True, he also is a dry, but he never said much about it. Trammell's record is drier than Death Valley's.

Comments From Contemporaries

MINERAL WELLS INDEX
Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas has made a flat refusal to serve on a committee to hear proposed changes in the dry law. He is the co-author of the 18th amendment and leader of the dry cause in the Senate. Why should he serve? He is a rock-rooted, iron-bound, steel-kirked dry. He believes that the prohibition laws, like the laws of the Medes and the Persians are unchangeable and immovable and that it will be impossible to revise or repeal them, until time shall be a standstill.

Senator Sheppard is a standpatter in more ways than one. In his last race for the senate he carried all the wet districts in Texas; also all the dry districts. There was a reason for it. He has never failed to support the national standard bearer of the Democratic party.

ABILENE REPORTER:
If the figures of the Houston Post-Dispatch are correct, martial law in the East Texas oil field has been a good investment for the state of Texas—in a dollar-and-cents way of speaking.

Granting that martial law has been responsible for the increase in the price of crude oil, the P-D correspondent says that the era of martial law has yielded the state a profit of $80,000 net. This is based on receipts from the two per cent gross production tax. The state's income from this tax in the martial law area is now about $199,000 per month which is about five times more than the state was getting when oil sold at ten cents a barrel.

The cost of maintaining martial law in the area is deducted from the state's income from the two per cent tax, and the correspondent's figure of $80,000 net profit from the area since military rule went into effect is arrived at.

The profit to oil producers, refinery owners and others engaged in the industry is, of course, comparatively greater than during the period of chaos. Few deny that military rule is responsible for the improvement of condition of the industry. It was an extraordinary measure to fit an extraordinary situation, and it seems to have worked pretty well, so far.

Diet and Health
By Logan Clendenen, M. D., Author of "The Human Body"

Many requests come to this department for information concerning special brands of infant foods. In general, it may be said that there have been great advances in the methods of scientific preparation of these products. Twenty years ago they were quite generally condemned by physicians. It is so great has been the improvement in their contents and nature that all of them are now acknowledged to have a place in special cases.

Before anything else, it should be recognized that the best food for baby is mother's milk. Next best is prepared cow's milk, with dextrine maltose sugar added.

The prepared foods fall into several classes.

First, evaporated milk. This is cow's milk, dried by heat to half its volume. The process makes the milk more digestible than raw milk. It also emulsifies the fat in fine globules. Evaporated milk always cleaner than raw milk. Prepare it for feeding, equal parts of water are added and sugar, dextrine maltose, as in a regular milk-sugar-water preparation of ordinary dairy milk.

Then there are the powdered foods; mostly mixes of sugars and starches. These contain dextrine and maltose which are the sugars easiest for infant to digest. They also contain starch, milk sugar (lactose) and some of them cane sugar. Examples of such foods are Borden's Food, Horlick's Milk Mould, Dannon's Food, Allenbury's Food, Ridge's Food, and others. They are useful to add to whole milk formulae since such formulae need some carbohydrate added to them.

Third, dried milk products, such as Kilm and Dryco. These dried milk preparations are free from harmful bacteria and the drying changes the protein of the milk to a more digestible form.

Fourth, are the so-called complete infant foods. One is the Synthetic Milk Adapted of Gerstberger. The object of this preparation is to come as close as possible to mother's milk. Special fats are added to skimmed cow milk and also cod liver oil to provide vitamins A and D. It can be obtained in powdered and concentrated liquid forms.

Some foods, such as Nestle's Milk Food, are a mixture of dried milk and sugars, such as dextrine maltose, cane sugar. They also add minerals, such as calcium iron and cod liver oil concentrate. They are recommended to be used as supplementary to whole milk feedings, not to supplant whole milk. Condensed milk comes in this category. It is whole cow evaporated to half the volume and sugar added. Condensed milk should not be used as the only food for a baby. It must be supplemented by whole milk formulae and by orange juice and cod liver oil.

Editor's Note: Four pamphlets and four articles by Dr. Clendenen can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin for each pamphlet and two cents in coin for each article, with a self-addressed stamped envelope, to Dr. Logan Clendenen in care of this paper or Central Press Association, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are: "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," and "Feminine Hygiene." The articles are "Normal Diet," "Diet of the Expectant Mother," "Tuberculosis" and "The Atonic Abdominal Wall."

TAIS WITH PARENTS
By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

I am presently a touching letter from mother, not so much that I dip her, as with the hope thaters of younger children read this might try to put the traits of character in children described in this.

"Dear Dr. When you say you have a bar-old boy I wonder how could give me some advice, am so discouraged over the same age and am alone effort to teach him to do before coming to this town a half ago. He has been a good boy here he has been with me have no respect for air in fact, that is about all I know in town."

"All he about is having a good smoking, smoking, going with a young man, sometimes till 2, and of the shows. He will not get up morning until I have word out calling him. One morning did not call him, and told could not call him again. He was late for school and got to at all that a m."

"He was anything about the home, will not stay here only to eat, and here only to sleep. But I sleep with all the spending, he wishes, although I desire to, I told him if I take care of the furnace odd jobs for me he would allowance. He did a few days then forgot it. Plays school hand but takes just in it except the good to have. My husband is dire would practice, but help a 200 hour at school, he is in June and says he was to college in September."

"Face of these facts, do you would settle down to just afraid he would just id time spending the money I have worked so hard to earn. He is bright. All his teachers say he could be a honest student if he tried, but he prefers to have a good time and just pass. He is very impudent and tells me he does not care what I think, as he will live his own life. I have no one here to talk to as the pastor has a son as bad, if not worse. I have wept and prayed night and day to know what was best to do."

Answer: no use to tell you that you have already made far too many sacrifices for that lad. You don't need scolding; you need help. My trouble is to know what to tell you that you can make work. In the first place, put no trust in talking, lecturing and arguing with the boy. It would be foolish to send him to college until he had proved that he can work out a reasonable program of caring for his health, getting regular hours of sleep, of spending money wisely, and assuming some home responsibilities.

Put him on an allowance; make it but a few cents a week, and no more. Give him an alarm clock and make him responsible for getting to meals on time. If he is not there without your calling him, let him go without food or have a very limited fare.

Of course I do not know how well you are able to carry out such a program. Don't neglect calling his attention to the good things he does and the good traits he has. Never bring up his past failures. Make them a closed book.

You surely have my very best wishes.

PERSONAL ADVICE
By Virginia Lee

I am apparently contradicting, which reopen the old question of "PERSONAL ADVICE: I am a young girl, I love a boy, but the trouble is I go yellow once and that's that. I've been hearing a 'kiss or not to kiss' and I guess that it where she lies. I've never asked her to kiss me, after he's taken me, guess they all think I'm there's no kick to go a girl they know they to kiss without half the whole cheese and it with him a few times only touched me. I went out with him I me and he hasn't been I honestly don't know o, Miss Lee, seems as matter what I do it's the wrong thing. I should be more dis-every time I try I fail, understand how miserable I am, soon half the town will have taken me. Won't you please something? I am considering, dress well, am intelligent and love to dance, so that I ought to get my good times.

"TWINKLES," VIRGINIA LEE, New

can a girl be popular and keep her standards? I've never met a boy who didn't want the girl he took out to neck. If she didn't he never asked her again, and she was blacklisted in his clique.

"I don't see any kick in necking. I think those who write and say that they can't find any girl who won't neck are full of boloney. Plenty of my friends won't go out at all because all the guys expect them to neck. I ask you, what's a girl to do, stay home and knit, or do things at which her conscience rebels?"

"DISILLUSIONED"

One of you can't keep a boy truly, because she's kissed too easily, and the other can't keep a pal because she objects to being kissed. Personally I don't believe keeping or losing the boy friend depends on necking or not necking. If you have the "goods," you'll have friends whether you neck or not. Boys are like girls—some want to be loved—"wishty," as Sam Weller would say. Some are underconstrative and prefer a girl who wouldn't expect "necking." You'll both have to look deeper into yourselves for your failure to keep boy friends.

Brown Eyes: Wait until your twenty-first birthday, and then you can marry, whether your father objects or not. No, your father couldn't put you in a reform school at your age, and just for having a boy friend.

College Of Marshall Tigers Drub Dragon Quint, 46-28

Fifth Round In Class B Cage Tournament On Tonight

VISION CHAMPS
OF YEAR AGO GET BIG LEAD EARLY

Way of Victorious Squad
Is High With Fourteen Points

Special to the News.
MARSHALL, Jan. 21.—Getting way to a 14 point lead in the first half the College of Marshall Tigers wamped the Paris junior college dragons 46 to 28 here Thursday night. The first half ended with the score at 28-14 in favor of the tigers.

The Dragons came back stronger in the second half, making 14 points to the Tigers 18.
High point man for the game was Wray of the Tiger squad with 4 points. For Paris the scoring was rather evenly distributed between Stafford, Briggs and Basano with 8, 7 and 6 points respectively. Each quint lost one man by the personal foul route.

Rough Game.
The game was unusually rough,
about 50 personal fouls being called on members of the two teams.
Marshall has the same team with which they won the championship of the eastern division last year. This quintet took the first of the play-off games with John Farleton for state championship and lost the deciding game by only a single point.

Coach Berry of the Dragons is determined to make a better showing Friday night, in the last of the two-game series here. It is very likely the Dragons will have a better chance. They will have become more accustomed to the Marshall court and with plays of the Tigers.
If the Dragons can take one game of the series, they will have an excellent chance of contending for the eastern district championship.
There is no doubt but that they can at least split the double bill with Marshall at Paris next week.

Coach Berry will doubtless use everything he has to take Friday night's game. All Dragon men used Thursday night showed good form, and much of their inability

FROG SCORING ACE

Adolph "Too Tall" Dietzel, the Southwest conference champion Texas Christian Horned Frogs' 6 foot, 5 inch all-conference center, is playing his second year on the Christian varsity. As a sophomore last year the lanky Dutchman carried off more honors than any first year man has in many seasons. He tied the conference record of points scored in a single contest against Texas when his offensive efforts were cashed in for 26 points; his season's total of 168 points in 12 games set a new conference mark, and he topped off the season by being selected almost unanimously for all-conference and making several all-American teams. His most worthy all-American selections were from the New York Sun and College Humor.

to score was probably due to rough playing, as their previous games have been played under officials who held personal fouling to a minimum.

The next games for the Dragons will be played at Paris, with Marshall January 28 and 29.

WILDCAT-DEPORT GAME PROMISES TO BE HIGHLIGHT

Paris High Quint Is Lone Undefeated Aggregation In Race

The fifth round of the class B division in the Lamar county in-terscholastic league basketball tournament will begin at the fair park coliseum Friday evening at 8:30 o'clock when Roston and Midway play the first game of the night.

Paris high school, hitherto undefeated in the county tournament, is matched with a strong five from Deport. The Wildcats will, of course, do their best to keep their record clear.

The Pattonville-Brookston encounter is also expected to attract considerable attention. Each of these quintets has lost only one game. Both teams are fast and the game is sure to be hard fought.
Considerable action is also expected in the Howland-Petty contest. Howland has lost three games and will have to win both the next two to have a chance at county championship.

The schedule for Friday evening
is as follows:
5:30, Roston vs. Midway.
6:20, Chicota vs. Cunningham.
7:10, Minter vs. Powderly.
8:00, Pattonville vs. Brookston.
8:50, Deport vs. Paris.
9:40, Howland vs. Petty.

Standing of the teams in the class B division is as follows:

Paris	4	0	0
Petty	4	1	1
Cunningham	4	3	1
Deport	4	3	1
Brookston	4	3	1
Pattonville	4	3	1
Roston	4	2	2
Howland	4	1	3
Midway	4	1	3
Minter	4	1	3
Chicota	4	0	4
Powderly	4	0	4

Officers Yawn As Crime Officially
Takes the Day Off

Officially crime took a holiday in Paris Thursday.
Quotations on felonies and misdemeanors shot skyward as the complaint forms remained undisturbed in the offices of justices of peace, county clerk, and U. S. commissioner.

"No hits, no runs, no errors," read the score card for the day.
Not only was there an absence of complaints but also an absence of registered civil suits.
Nothing was filed with the county, district or U. S. deputy clerks.

Some blamed the weather;
others blamed condition of latural roads of the county; still others laid the responsibility at the door of the financial situation. One voice piped up with "the law violators are becoming smoother—or else—"

Yet it remains—it was a hard day for the fee offices of the county, state and these United States.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.
Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.
Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

'HARD TO BELIEVE IT'S TRUE' HE SAYS

Goltry, Okla., Farmer Astonished at Results He Got From Argotane

"I had heard Argotane praised very highly, but I can speak from experience now, for I have certainly found it to be a splendid medicine." This statement was made by W. H. Wright, residing on route B, Goltry, Okla., while in Emid.

"I had suffered for 11 or 12 years," said Mr. Wright, "from stomach trouble, nervousness and headaches and could not find anything to give me relief. My appetite was poor and what I would eat never seemed to agree with me or do me much good. I would bloat up with gas after eating and feel miserable for hours and at times I found difficulty in breathing. Headaches bothered me a great deal and I was nervous all the time."

"I was finally induced by the splendid endorsements I read for Argotane to try it, and it's hard to believe it's true that anyone could get such wonderful results from a medicine in so short a time.
I have hardly finished my fourth bottle yet, but my appetite is splendid already and I haven't been bothered with gas on my stomach nor those headaches since I began taking Argotane. My food seems to be doing me good now, as I always feel nourished and strengthened after eating. I have been relieved of that tired, draggy feeling, and I have also found Argotane to be very good for constipation. I am feeling much better in every way than I have in years and my advice to anyone bothered with such troubles as I had is, take Argotane.
It is great."

Genuine Argotane may be obtained at the Palace Drug Store in Paris, Texas.—Adv.

BUSY WEEK IN SOUTHWEST RACE

Mustangs at Fayetteville
Tonight; Three Games
On Tap Saturday

DALLAS, Jan. 21. (P)—After a busy week which saw the Texas Christian Frogs regain their 1931 championship form, the Southwest conference closes this week's race card with games Friday and Saturday night.

The semifinal for the week-end will be Friday night at Fayetteville between Southern Methodist and Arkansas. The Mustangs left here Thursday for the two game series. Three games are scheduled Saturday night. Texas takes on Rice at Houston, Baylor invades College Station and S. M. U. sticks at Fayetteville.

As the quintets lined up this week end, the Baylor Bears were leading with a victory and no defeats. Rice and Texas Christian were tied for second place with two wins and a defeat each.

Offensively, Texas Christian led.
The Frogs have scored 123 points.
After losing the opening game to Baylor 22 to 24, the Frogs staged a sensational comeback to beat Rice 47 to 22, and Texas 52 to 22.
Perhaps the center of interest will be at College Station where Baylor will have a chance to prove itself a redoubtable ball club or one that just flashed against Texas Christian.

As a result of games early this week, Adolph "Too Tall" Dietzel, Texas Christian center, jumped into the scoring lead with 19 field goals and 19 charity shots for 48 points. Kubright, Texas center, ranked second with 18 field goals and 9 free tosses for 41 points.
"Doc" Sumner, Texas Christian forward, was third. Sumner had 15 field goals and 10 gratis shots for 40 points.

CHAPTER 18

The warm, dull afternoon on the train developed into pleasant hours that passed swiftly for Marcia. When Turner Gilmore returned from the smoker, he came directly to her section and settled himself in the seat facing her, as if they had been long acquainted. Marcia found herself liking him from the first. She talked about her work, her family and her ambitions, prompted by his interested questions.

"And have you found the world quite as enchanting as you expected?" he smiled.

"Yes—and no," Marcia replied, gazing out the window over the heat-dawdling country. "Of course I have seen only a very little of it, yet, and only the least interesting places, after all. But the people—all people are pretty much alike, aren't they, Mr. Gilmore?"

"Indeed they are. There are distinct classes into which every individual can be placed. Not social classes such as those into which foreign countries divide their population; but characteristic classes. Mental classes. Motive classes. You are quite a philosopher for a young girl, Miss Meyer."

"One has to acquire a philosophy to deal with life and manage it at all. There are some who never need one and never develop one—the drift that they please from life, as it passes them by or carries them along, according to their fortune. They don't need to be philosophical."

"And consequently never develop characters of their own. I know lots of them. You are right about people."

Their conversation rambled on, pleasantly. Nearing their destination, later, he asked "You will let me see you while you are in Detroit, won't you? It might not be a bad idea to have a guardian of the law for your personal protection, you know."

"That would be nice," she agreed and told him where she was stopping.

They drove uptown in the same taxicab and he left her at the hotel with a promise to telephone the next day. Marcia experienced the first real thrill of anticipation that she had known since leaving home. Added to the distinguished appearance of Turner Gilmore was the federal government's seal of approval and authority and the whole was dominated by a charming personality to which her eagerness for friendship responded. She would be in Detroit for two weeks. Gilmore had not said how long he was staying, but she hoped it would be that long. She had her work well in hand now, and could devote most of her evenings to recreation and pleasure without compromising it. The past month had been a dull sequence of one-week cities, where nothing of consequence had developed. Perhaps it was just as well that she had not met someone like Gilmore sooner. She needed the time to concentrate upon her business interests.

Marcia found herself eager for five o'clock on the following day, when she would return to the hotel and the telephone call that promised a friend at the other end of the wire. She had begun to realize how much she had missed friends and interested companions during these past weeks. And then she almost feared that Gilmore would not call, that he had forgotten her, even now.

The telephone did ring punctually, however, at five-thirty, and she jumped up quickly to answer it. This really was her first adventure, her first experience with the romance of the world. Ed Haley in Chicago had been a different proposition. He was a superior business associate, and their acquaintance had been prearranged. Turner Gilmore was her own adventure, and their acquaintance had been actuated by no other motive than their mutual attraction.

"How's the little lady today? All set?" his deep voice asked.

"Everything's grand. I think I am going to like this town?" she declared.

"That's just what I was thinking. Strange, though, I've been here before and never liked it so well. You must be the difference, perhaps."

She laughed happily. "Oh, cities do improve all the time you know."

"Depending upon who comes and goes."

"Have you caught your bad men yet?"

"Not a chance. It isn't so easy as that, and I'm going to be a busy man here. But not too busy to see you any time you will let me. I just had a sudden unhappy thought today that perhaps I'd already let opportunity slip through my fingers and that you might be booked up with admirers already."

Don't say I am too late to take you to dinner tonight."

"I haven't seen an admirer on the lot," laughed Marcia.

"You may not have seen them, but they've been around, all right. Then dinner, with me, it is. And a show? I haven't had a chance to see what's on, but we can decide at dinner where to go."

Marcia never had been so excited in all her life over a date. Her fingers fairly trembled when she fastened the snaps at the side of the fitted bodice of her best dinner frock. Copper-kettle lace, it was, that flowed from her white shoulders and swirled around her slender, silken ankles. A diminutive bronze velvet jacket, fastened at her waist with a scintillating topaz clasp that appeared to absorb its dardled gleams from her hair. Gilmore's eyes when he saw her, told her that even her exquisite beauty had been somewhat obscured by the grime and heat of the train on the previous day.

"Why! You are—too lovely," he explained, genuinely surprised in spite of his expectations.

"Then I won't do at all?" countered Marcia.

"Marvelously," he assured her, still looking at her as if she were an object of art that he wished to add to a collection. He kept her hand and tucked it under his arm as they left the hotel lobby.

They walked along Woodward avenue slowly in the warm night air, the blazing lights, and the clamorous sounds of traffic. Marcia walked in rapture, intense with excitement and anticipation. Turner Gilmore was part of it. He belonged. Marcia wondered if she did. When people looked at her—as many did—she wondered if they knew that she was a stranger on this city avenue from a little mid-west town. Had she acquired, during the past two months, any of that urbanity which emanated from people like Percy DuMott and Turner Gilmore?

Her escort quite shattered her hopes when they were at a side table for two, which overlooked the avenue through open French windows. Such tables were reserved without advance reservations for men who looked like Gilmore and were accompanied by women who looked like Marcia. All the world particularly dining room captains, rallies to the cause of such manifestation of romance, and accelerates its own momentum.

Gilmore smiled into her eyes and wounded her pride by saying quite frankly, "You don't look a bit like a roamer of the world who deals with the public and struggles with life single-handed."

You don't look hard and blasé like a lot of business girls do. Don't get that way, either. I don't believe you could."

"Isn't it necessary to success, though?" she asked dubiously.

"Not for women. The most successful retain every ounce of their femininity. I've observed that it is the bluffers who have to attract attention by assuming a superficial hardness. Just keep natural, sweet and lovely as you are, and life will kneel at your feet. I am there now—Marcia."

"Oh," she almost gasped "please don't." Then she added, flippantly, "Get up and dance with me, instead."

"That's a happy thought, and just right. They are playing for you, now 'Sweet and Lovely.'"

Glances involuntarily followed their rhythmic progress over the gleaming floor. Marcia's beauty drew their eyes like a magnet, and a man like Turner Gilmore commanded interest. They were complete harmony in every variety of its sense: sound, movement, color, beauty. Groups speculated on their identity, and women envied Marcia, some of them with almost bitter resentment.

She might have been surprised to know that she—who was from Mitchellfield and embarked upon her first romantic adventure—was so singled out in that brilliant throng. Her very innocence of the fact only contributed to her distinction, as her companion was well aware. He had danced and dined with many beautiful women—and had forgotten them. Perhaps he would forget Marcia, too, but he thought not.

And she was thinking that if Miss Haven and others like her in Mitchellfield could see her dancing with a strange man whom she had met casually and unconventionally in the dining car only yesterday and to whom she had introduced herself they would declare her well on the road to ruin. She was curious, however, about this man who lavished compliments upon her from his first words and at the same time appeared to be serious. His words did not sound like mere prattle. (To Be Continued)

HOOVERTOWN NEWS AND PERSONAL NOTES

HOOVERTOWN, Jan. 21.—Everyone regretted to see the rain Saturday. The roads are bad and one bridge has fallen in. Farmers are getting blue as it is time to begin farming and there is a good bit of cotton to be picked and corn in the field.

William Stout and family moved from here to the Holt place near Blossom.

Charles D., small son of Eugene Brodie, is ill with pneumonia in both lungs.

Mr. Alsop who was ill with pneumonia and was carried to his brother's at Clarksville, died Wednesday and was buried Thursday at Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. Aud Shillings and daughter of Gladewater are here visiting.

Inez, daughter of Wayne Thomas, is ill with pneumonia.

Hoyle Rollins has returned to his home at Midway.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Middleton have returned to their home in Dallas.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Cotton of Pattonville moved into our community.

Someone entered Joe Waddle's house Friday night and took a pair of boy's shoes and two middings of meat, and some clothes from the line in the yard. The family was at home.

Jim Parks of Mosley has moved here.

Those who killed hogs lately are uneasy about their meat.

Miss Inez Williams of Byrdtown spent Sunday here.

Mrs. Maud Speegle is visiting Mrs. Robert Vickers at Minter. F. H. Carpenter has been ill but is improved.

FORMER BLOSSOM MAN BURIED THERE TUESDAY

BLOSSOM, Jan. 21.—J. M. Ford, 75, died at his home near Honey Grove Monday from heart trouble. Funeral was held Tuesday in Blossom at the Methodist church conducted by Revs. W. H. Wright of Paris and C. L. Satterfield and T. W. Cummins of Blossom, and burial was at K. of H. cemetery. Mr. Ford was born in Alabama, April 1, 1856. He farmed west of Blossom several years and moved to Honey Grove. He was a member of the Methodist church and is survived by his wife who was Miss Ethel Young when they were married in 1887, their children Oscar, Claude and Donald Ford, and two married daughters, his brother and two sisters.

The coldest winter of which there is record was in the year 1700 when in Europe frost penetrated three yards in the ground, and the Adriatic was frozen over, and also the coast of the Mediterranean.

Instruction

ONE Course $18.00, $3.00 down. typewriter with course, Paris Commercial College.

PARIS COMMERCIAL COLLEGE. 3 YOUNG PEOPLE living in the Paris trade territory have read or advertised in the Paris Commercial College. They have met our teachers, seen our equipment, have observed the high quality of work which we are giving our students, and then enrolled.

After they accepted our invitation to visit our school, and to take an honest comparison of what we have to offer in comparison with other schools, 143 decided to enroll in the Paris Commercial College. We have room for other young people who are ambitious to receive their higher commercial training under the seasoned leadership of its present management.

All of our teachers have license to teach in the schools of Texas. Because their educational qualifications come up to the requirements of the laws of the state, our courses are reasonable, our terms are exceptionally easy and in addition to this, we furnish you a late model No. 5 Underwood typewriter in your home where you will have the privilege of using it seven days in the week. MAKE HIS TYPEWRITER WE MAKE HIS EXTRA CHARGE.

Our prices are in line with the prices of all first class business colleges and are furnished with modern up-to-date school equipment.

Since Sept. 1, 143 young people have enrolled in our DAY SCHOOL, NIGHT SCHOOL, HOME SCHOOL. We invite you to visit, compare, enroll.

Phone 1241, write, or come to see W. H. Farmer, manager, Paris Commercial College.

MR. W. H. FARMER: Please accept my many thanks for the "Free Typewriter" in my home. Last spring and summer while working on the farm, I did much of my typewriting at night. I am still using it every evening and night. Saturdays, I do not seem how I could do my work up to your standard without my typewriter at home—many thanks for making it possible to have two typewriters, one at home and one at school.

Some night at home I turn out 10, 40 and 50 pages of typewriting work. I wish to recommend to other young people the merits of your Home Course and Free Typewriter. For the benefit of those who are thinking of taking commercial training, I would urge that they investigate what you have to offer. I am indeed glad that I enrolled with you, and I have found that your school is all that you claim for it.

OSCAR NANCE. (Signed) We can use TEN MORE GOOD BOYS LIKE OSCAR NANCE. There is a place waiting for him just as soon as he has graduated from our school in the very near future. The Paris Commercial College will appreciate a visit at any time from any young person interested in Commercial Training. Phone 1241, write or come to see W. H. CHAIRMEN MAKE REPORT ON WORK AT BOARD MEET

Traffic Division Suggests Organization of Club in Paris

Lamar County Chamber of Commerce committees are on the job and are producing results, according to reports heard at the weekly meeting of the board of directors Thursday afternoon.

One of the most illuminating and interesting of these reports was from the transportation committee of which T. B. Hinkle is chairman. His committee has just completed a detailed survey of the transportation situation in Paris. The committee finds a spirit of co-operation on the part of the railroads to improve shipping conditions.

The committee has been tendered a number of desirable sites for the location of new industries. They also found that the railroads are buying replacement cross-ties from timber land in Paris area, thus affording employment for laborers and income for land owners.

The committee has inspected freight and passenger schedules, etc. Another important item in the report was the suggestion from the committee that a traffic club be organized in Paris. The board favored this movement and pledged its co-operation to the committee.

Highway Report
Speaking of the public highway work, General Chairman Leon Gilmore said he had never known a better spirit of co-operation than now exists in this work. He said the completion of right-of-way through Cook and Montague counties on Highway 5 gave to Lamar county the most valuable traffic artery to traverse the county. He said work was under way to secure right-of-way on Highway 24 north of Paris, making it a 100-foot right-of-way the entire distance of Red River. His committee desires to center activities on improving and beautifying this gateway into the state. Highway 49 is being worked on and the committee hopes in the near future to have a favorable report on improvement of this road.

Twenty-five dollars was voted to Highway 19 Association at the suggestion of this committee.

Drive For Members
The membership committee composed of T. B. Revell, B. B. Harlan and Pat Mayse reported that an active campaign would be launched at once in an effort to enlist some 200 business and professional men who are not now giving financial support to the Chamber of Commerce. The committee's plans were approved and the board pledged support in carrying them out.

J. P. Amis, chairman of the agricultural committee, and R. C. Lane, chairman of the finance committee, will make reports at the next meeting.

The board appropriated $15 for cash prize to be used by R. J. Presley, state sanitarian in health work in the rural schools of Lamar county.

Cafeteria For Schools
In discussion of health work in the schools and the activities of the Chamber of Commerce in advanced work, the suggestion was advanced by E. B. Harlan that the possibility of a cafeteria in the Paris schools should be investigated and support of the Chamber of Commerce tendered on such a work.

Paris-made products will be magnified under a plan which was not yet been completely worked out, according to W. L. Dulaney, chairman of the industrial committee.

The directors voted to send a representative delegation to the East Texas Chamber of Commerce district meeting to be held at McKinney Monday, February 1, from 2 to 5 p. m. This delegation will recommend the re-election of O. W. Boswell as county counselor. He served during the past year, securing greater support for the East Texas Chamber of Commerce than during any previous year.

President R. F. Scott, Jr., said that the Lamar County Chamber of Commerce will also present to the East Texas Chamber of Commerce the particular projects on which help is needed for Lamar county. He brought up a number of other items of business, among them being the financial report which showed the local organization in excellent condition. He expressed gratification over the unusually good attendance and thanked the committeemen for the thoroughness with which they are carrying on their work.

NEW CAR STOLEN FROM CLARKSVILLE OWNER
CLARKSVILLE, Jan. 21.—"Lefty" Griffin's new car was stolen Monday night, while it was parked at the home of Smith Sims. He had left his keys in the car. The thief left in its stead an old Ford, which bore a Texas license number, and which was found to have been stolen in Texas. The officers are working on the case. Not long ago "Lefty" had a new hat and it was stolen from his car, while it was parked at a residence where he was attending a party.

Markets

Local Cotton
Received Thursday 216 bales with prices ranging from 5 to 6.50 cents. Total receipts for the season, 42,347 bales.

Dallas Poultry and Eggs
DALLAS, Jan. 21. (P)—Poultry and eggs: hens, pound 10-15; young chickens, pound 12-16; turkeys, pound 8-13; guineas, dozen $3; geese, pound 6-7; eggs, dozen 12-14; packing butter, pound 7-8; ducks, pound 9-10. Paris prices corresponding.

New Orleans Cotton
NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 21. (P)—Cotton ruled quiet all day and prices fluctuated within a narrow range, closing unchanged to 2 points down.

The market opened steady as Liverpool cables were about as due to 2 penny points better than due. Liverpool called privately that there was local and continental buying and trade calling with a scarcity of contracts. Manchester cable that the home trade was improving. Before noon, March had advanced to 6.73, May to 6.90 and July to 7.06.

The market ruled quiet all afternoon continuing within the earlier range but near the lows. March made a new low at 6.67, but the other active months merely duplicated the previous lows and closed at the bottom. March and July closing 2 points net down and May net unchanged for the day.

New York Cotton
NEW YORK, Jan. 21. (P)—Trading in cotton was comparatively quiet Thursday and prices held fairly steady within a range of 5-6 points. An early advance on relatively firm Liverpool cables and reports of a firm spot situation in the south met moderate realizing, causing partial reaction. March contracts after selling up from 6.68 to 6.74 closed at 6.70 with the general market closing at net advances of 2 to 3 points.

There was early covering and trade buying which appeared to come partly from abroad, but the initial demand was supplied around 6.58 for May and 7.07 for July. Closing quotations were within a point or two of the lowest for the day.

The small volume and narrow fluctuations were regarded by local traders as indicating a disposition to await further developments in the general business outlook.

New York Stocks
NEW YORK, Jan. 21. (P)—A difficult stock market Thursday failed to reach a decision on trend. Although during most of the session prices looked a little stronger, there was a well-off toward a fractional decline. Volume was around recent low levels at 1,237,768 shares.

Trading seemed to be under professional auspices. Operators in the rail group were reluctant to leave the carriers idle and bid them up 1 to 3 points, presumably on the strength of a conviction that an agreement on the wage cut was surely coming; in fact, advice received by some brokerage houses said a settlement was expected by the end of this week. Gains in the rail shares tapered off eventually and a few, including New York Central, Canadian Pacific and Southern Pacific, finished with small losses.

Fort Worth Livestock
FORT WORTH, Jan. 21. (P)—Hogs—$60; market steady to 10 lower; bulk better grades 150-250 pound truck hogs $4.25-$4.30; packing hogs mostly $3.50 or steady.

Cattle—2,200; including 500 calves; market dull, weak to lower trade in slaughter steers and yearlings, around 50 under last week's close on fed steers; good fat yearlings $5.35-$5.45, about steady; slaughter steers mostly of value to move around $3.75-$4.75; general trade other classes cattle about steady with limited supplies bulls strong to 25 higher; few fat cows around $3-$3.25; few heavy bulls up to $3.50; stocker market very poorly tested; feeder steers $4.50, quotable steady; some good heavy fat calves on packer account $4.65-$5; about steady, other weights averages $4.50 down.

Sheep—6,500; market very slow, packers bidding $4.50 on good woolled lambs, to 50 lower; good wooled truck lambs up to $4.50 or unevenly lower; fat yearlings and wethers steady, fat yearlings and wethers mixed $3.50; fat wethers, mixed aged 3.25; aged fat wethers $3.

Chicago Grain
CHICAGO, Jan. 21. (P)—Grains averaged higher Thursday, and assertions increased that a commodity pool was buying, but advances were finally wiped out owing to heavy selling on the bulges.

Failure of gains to hold appeared to be due largely to wheat future delivery sales from sources affiliated with the federal farm board. On the other hand, stimulus to buyers was word from Washington that funds from the reconstruction finance corporation were expected to be available in a fortnight, and that the corporation could finance United States export acceptances over a long period whereas at present the federal reserve banks would discount acceptances for only 90 days.

Closing indemnities—wheat—May 58 7-8 59, 60 5-8 3-4; July 58 3-8 1-2, 60 1-3 1-4; Sept. 60, 61 3-4. Corn—May 40 3-4 7-8, 41 3-4 7-8, July 42 1-2, 43 1-8.

Social Affairs In Clarksville

CLARKSVILLE, Jan. 21.—Guy Scott of Bogata announces the marriage of his daughter, Mrs. Rosa Scott Harris, to Enos Elder, January 10, 1932, in Texarkana. They returned from a wedding trip to southern Texas and are at home at 1011 Delaware avenue, Clarksville.

Miscellaneous Shower.
Mrs. Mat Talley who has been president of the circles of the W. M. U. of the Baptist church, and who with her family is moving to their country home, was honored Tuesday afternoon with a surprise miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. D. A. Parker, by all of the circles of the W. M. U. Many games and stunts were played and the gifts were presented in a clever fashion. At the close of the afternoon hot tea was served with fancy cakes to about 25 guests.

Bridge Party.
Mrs. Ross King Wednesday afternoon entertained at bridge. Pot-tered begonias, carnations and ferns decorated the home. Mrs. William Hinkle made high score and was given a pair of silk hose, while Mrs. Melvin Marx scored next and was rewarded with two decks of cards in a case. A luncheon plate was served after the games to Misses Sam Porter, Jap Thorne, J. C. Barton, Nowlin Watson, C. T. Walker, E. W. Bowers, A. M. Graves, J. E. Allen, Sam Rosenfeld, William Hinkle, Saul Rosenfeld, John E. Barry, T. E. Gardner, J. T. McRoberts, Dave Bogdanov, Mae McClinton, Furman Wolf, Melvin Marx, George W. Whiteman and Selden Bagby, of Clarksville. The hostess was assisted by her small daughter, Elizabeth and her mother, Mrs. George Morrison.

Ladies' Aid Society.
The Ladies' Aid society of the Christian church held its annual meeting Thursday with Mrs. J. E. Spencer. Mrs. E. McClinton gave the devotional and Mrs. C. P. Craig the prayer. These officers were re-elected for the ensuing year: president, Mrs. J. E. Spencer; vice president, Mrs. E. McClinton; secretary, Mrs. Teel Bowers; treasurer, Mrs. Chas. Swain. It was voted to have an oyster supper February 20. During the social hour a clever contest was enjoyed. All the contestants won, and in the cut for the favor, Mrs. Craig was fortunate and was given a jar of peach conserve. Refreshments were served to 14 members and three visitors, Mrs. Joe F. Smith, Mrs. Rufus Farrier and Mrs. Cecile Weaver of Vernon. Plate favors and other appointments carried out the Valentine motif. The next meeting will be February 4 with Mrs. Teel Bowers.

SUMNER SOCIAL AND PERSONAL NOTES
SUMNER, Jan. 21.—The school has good attendance. This is a very busy time here for people who are moving. There was no Sunday school last Sunday on account of bad weather but had Epworth League Sunday night. Miss Robble Dodson returned to Paris Sunday after spending the week end at home. Cecil Everett returned to Midway Sunday after spending the week end at home. Uncle Jim Keeling has returned home after a visit in Paris.
